

A note about California State Statute Title 20

The California Energy Commission has established the Title 20 Code of Regulations. This statute's primary intention is to reduce energy consumption in the home.

Title 20 requires that all portable lamps sold within the State of California after January 1, 2010 shall have high efficiency lighting sources. The statute allows for a number of compliance options including Compact Fluorescent Bulbs (CFL), LED light sources, and the new GU-24 lighting platform.

Your product will include one of these new lighting sources as a result of Hubbardton Forge's compliance with California's Title 20.

For additional information regarding the California Statute Title 20, please refer to the California energy website <http://www.energy.ca.gov/siting/title20>.